| Can you describe and/or demonstrate the specific impact that TFN funding has had against your initial objectives? | Since this funding we have provided employability training to 21 new women with the overall outcomes being increased employability, access to work and reduced social isolation amongst women who were the furthest from the job market. We currently have a success rate of 88% graduates moving into employment, further training or starting their own business. We also continued to support 24 graduates to make positive steps in their career through our mentoring programme & increasing their access to work opportunities. Through our activities, women in London have been empowered to make positive changes for their future and become financially independent - impacting not only their own lives but also their children and their peers'. This has a wider social impact and will help to lift communities out from poverty, as future generations will not be exposed to the same disadvantages their mothers were. |
